

Summit Announces Addition to UGA Contract

Summit Systems Added to University of Georgia Contract

ATLANTA — April 1, 2008 — Today Summit Systems, Inc. (SSi) of Buford, Georgia announces their participation in the State of Georgia UGA contract for the sale of Audio Visual products. Because of their focus in the higher education market, Summit Systems made the decision in their go to market strategy to participate in the in the UGA contract as it pertains to their control system manufacturer partners.

Tim Gorisek, Sr. Vice President stated “This is a good day for Summit Systems and our higher education customers. Our participation in the contract allows us to pass savings on to our clients and make the procurement process much more streamline when our customers need a solution. As a true system integrator, we chose to focus on the control system manufacturers as they represent most of the cost and are the most complex component of the deployment and support cycles“.

The University Administration at UGA believes that successful procurement can best be performed by a single department which specializes in this field and which works in cooperation with other units and State agencies in making purchases. The University Procurement Office is the University's only channel of contact with the State Purchasing Division and with the Georgia Technology Authority. UGA is responsible for coordination of all University procurement activities with appropriate State agencies.

Summit Systems, Inc. (SSi) is a privately held, Georgia based professional solutions provider with an impeccable reputation for quality and consistently providing a positive customer experience. SSi provides a unique combined offering with complete service solutions in Audio Visual Systems, Structured Data and Voice Communications, and Power Systems.
